

Once upon a time, there were two children in grade 3.
Both of them had the same two friends.

One friend was very restless and not so kind.
He didn't always listen to his teacher or his parents.
He thought only about himself and not about his classmates.
He was unkind when he didn't get his way.
The other children didn't like him very much.

But their other friend was calm, kind, and helpful.
He shared his things with others.
He always said sorry when there was a fight and made peace again.
He helped others when they needed help.
The other children liked him.

🍛 Question of the Day: How are your friends towards you,
and how are you towards other children?
